Digital TransformationMarket Monitor

With the end of the quarter comes a flurry of deal closures, and Q3 2021 was certainly no exception. We would like to congratulate our client, Blink UX, on its successful transaction with Mphasis, which closed in September. This marks Clearsight's seventh digital transformation transaction in the last 12 months. Blink is a research-driven user experience (UX) design and strategy consultancy. Blink's founders built a tremendous business renowned for its ability to help clients innovate and create disruptive digital products and service models. Mphasis took a giant strategic leap with this acquisition. With Blink's team, Mphasis is significantly better positioned to engage clients at a strategic level and is primed to compete in the evolving digital product development market.

The Blink-Mphasis transaction represents a broader trend of heightened interest and greater deal volume in the digital experience space. The sudden increase in the number of digital mediums, coupled with their importance for both B2C and B2B corporations, is reshaping the digital transformation sector. These dynamics are driving significant growth for digital agencies able to offer integrated research-based product designs alongside engineering and analytics capabilities. As strategic acquirers and investors look to build one-stop-shops for digital experiences, agencies with comprehensive offerings will see much higher demand than those with less expansive services.

In addition to Blink, we recently advised Overactive, a rapidly growing, 700-person-strong nearshore product development firm, on its successful sale to Perficient. Clearly the M&A market remains white-hot, but for how long? That's the golden question everyone is trying to predict. No one has a crystal ball, but at Clearsight we have high confidence 2022 will be a banner year. Shareholders thinking about a transaction in the near- to mid-term should consider exploring a deal next year. Feel free to contact us with any questions on how to explore those considerations as this year winds down and M&A activity remains high.
